

Congressman Earl Blumenauer stopped by Clarendon at Portsmouth Middle School in Portland Monday morning to challenge students to increase their physical activity. Clarendon at Portsmouth is one of five Portland-area middle schools participating in the Humana Horsepower Challenge, which is pitting Oregon’s Third Congressional District students against students in 20 other congressional districts to see which district is the most active. Students wear pedometers track their physical activity through an online video game that measures how much exercise they get in a day.

Portland, Oregon, May 11, 2009. U.S. Representative Louie Gohmert (R-TX) today announced that he will be challenging Clarendon, Oregon, to a "Horsepower Challenge" to see who can get the most people to ride horses in the state.

Congressman Earl Blumenauer and Clarendon at Portsmouth Middle School jog in place.